Reasons for studying English

English is part of our language, we sometimes don´t realice how many English words we know from the media, films, publicity, tv, songs and the internet. There are many reasons for learning English. For example, to understand songs, students constantly ask teachers the meaning of lyrics, as they want to know what the writer or Singer means.

Also, not all books are translated, so at school and university, students have t oread articles and books in English to become better professionals. What is more, there are many international industries and companies settled in no-English speaking countries which need bilingual employees, and most Jobs these days require writing e-mails and speaking with foreigners. Other purposes for studying English is travelling abroad, visiting different places, meeting English speakers and experiencing other cultures. English is learnt all around the world, so sometimes it allows you to communicate with the local easier. English is also the language of technology. Every day more and more new electronic godos and devices are invented, and their instruction manual are normally written in English.

Finally, perhaps the most popular reason for studying English is the Internet. Together with computers, it is parto f our lives. Everything can be found in the net and almost every person has Access to it. Professionals, workers, students, teenagers, housewives, everyone look up information, news, even song lyrics. Many of the sites and software are in English so that they are available for everybody around the world.

No matter what the reason, nobody can deny that we need to study English to understand the world around us.
